

30°

The diagram consists of two straight black lines that intersect at a central point. This intersection creates four angles. The angle at the top, formed by the upper-left and upper-right rays, is labeled with the text '30°'. A small black arc is drawn between the two rays of this angle, indicating the specific angle being measured.