

30°

The diagram shows two straight lines intersecting at a central point. This intersection creates four angles. The angle at the top, formed by the upper-left and upper-right rays, is labeled 30°. A small arc is drawn between the two rays of this angle to indicate the measurement point.