

30°

The diagram consists of two straight black lines that intersect at a central point. This intersection creates four angles. The angle at the top, formed by the upper-left and upper-right rays, is labeled with the text "30°". A small, thin black arc is drawn between the two rays of this angle to indicate the measurement point.